1,386 ON CANOPIC ARE HELD

The White Star liner Canopic, which arrived off Boston Light from Mediterranean ports last night, steamed up the harbor to-day and landed 1,386 steerage passengers at the quarantine station on Gallop's Island for the first wholesale examination for cholera in the history of immigration at this port.

The ninety-six saloon passengers were transferred to the harbor steamer Griswold and were brought to the White Star docks in Charlestown. There they were allowed to go ashore after the usual customs formalities. But before they were allowed to leave the Canopic the health authorities made sure that no traces of cholera existed in the saloon.

There are 206 passengers in the Canopic's second cabin. These were examined for cholera aboard the liner. It was planned, if no cholera traces appeared, to transship them to the city late this afternoon.

But the steerage passengers were transferred to Gallup's Island before any examination of them was made at all. This was in accordance with plans made to submit all steerage passengers to thorough bacteriological examination before allowing them to come even to the city's waterfront.

Will Fumigate the Ship.

When the Canopic came to anchor in the stream, as near Gallup's as her deep draught permitted, the health tug Vigilant and the tug G. A. Hibbard went alongside and made fast to receive the first batch of immigrants. Each tug took the steerage passengers in 100 lots, necessitating seven trips to and from the ship to Island.

The transfer of immigrants began at o'clock and took till the middle of the afternoon. Examination of immigrants began on the island as soon as the first boatload was ashore. So, by noon time, the sport physician and the physicians of the city board of health were busy taking tests for cholera from the first arbore.

It was thought that the Canopic, which has to be thoroughly fumigated, will be at quarantine three days.

Hundreds in Steerage.

The Boston Board of Health and the federal immigration authorities were all ready for their huge task when the Canopic and her passengers were marshalled for inspection.

The intent of the task was simple, though involving vast detail. On reaching the Asiatic cholera scare the Treasury Department, which has charge of all immigration, made a ruling recently that all liners bringing immigrants from Mediterranean ports must submit their passengers for examination for cholera before landing them.

In the case of first cabin passengers this meant that if no traces of cholera were discovered on the vessel they could be sent ashore as soon as the customs examinations were completed.

The second cabin passengers were to be quarantined aboard ship till bacteriological examination for cholera germs could be done on board.

But the third class, or steerage, passengers formed a problem. A liner like the Canopic carries hundreds in the steerage. The present trip numbers 1,500 steerage out of a total of 1,088 passengers.

Not only do mere numbers make examinations laborious here, but the living for steerage passengers are the most searching of all. For it is among the Italian peasantry and others of the immigrant class that the authorities look for cholera cases if anywhere.

Held at Quarantine.

Therefore it was impossible to examine all the steerage passengers aboard the liner and equally impossible to keep them cooped up there for several days putting the costly vessel out of commission for that time. Nor are the immigration and health officials taking any chances of possible cholera cases being let ashore in the city at the different docks or the immigration station on Atlantic avenue.

So quarters were installed at the quarantine station on Gallup's Island for all of the steerage passengers there, giving them bacteriological examination and keeping them in quarantine.

To house, feed and examine 1,300 or more immigrants means a tremendous amount of work, especially as this whole scale task at Gallup's Island is an entirely new problem in Boston. But it was tackled well ahead of time and with energy and thoroughness.

Gallup's Island is well adapted for such work and is large enough. Being in the harbor, it is easily guarded from intrusion. It is healthful.

Arrangements were made by the city health authorities and by Dr. William M. Gay, port physician. Wooden buildings were erected, with cots, mess tables, etc., and tents for the men passengers. Comfortable cots were put in. The kitchen of the quarantine station was enlarged. It is intended to feed the immigrants well.

COMMITS SUICIDE FOR LOSS OF WIFE

The body of Carl P. Bickel, aged fifty-two years, was discovered hanging from a hook in a clothes closet to-day at his home, No. 337 Hyde Park avenue, Hyde Park. Dr. Francis Broderick was called and said the man had been dead some time. Neighbors said Bickel lost his wife several weeks ago, and that since her death he had been very despondent.

LARZ ANDERSON OF BOSTON, NAMED FOR BELGIAN MISSION

U. S.

ANDERSON GETS BELGIAN POST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The long expected shakeup in the diplomatic service came to-day when President Taft sent the following nominations to the Senate:

John G. A. Leishman of Pittsburg, Pa., ambassador to Germany.

Thomas J. O'Brien of Grand Rapids, Mich., ambassador to Italy.

Charles Page Bryan of Chicago ambassador to Japan.

Larz Anderson of Boston, minister to Belgium.

John Ridgely Carter of Baltimore, minister to the Argentine Republic.

John B. Jackson of New Jersey, minister to the Balkan States.

Arthur M. Beaupre of Aurora, Ill., minister to Cuba.

Lloyd Bryce of New York, minister to the Netherlands.

Mr. Leishman has been in the diplomatic service since 1897, his first post being that of Minister to Switzerland. He was Minister to Turkey from 1900 to 1906, and was appointed Ambassador to Turkey in 1906. He was appointed Ambassador to Italy, April 1, 1907.

Mr. O'Brien was appointed Minister to Denmark in 1906 and Ambassador to Italy in 1907.

Charles Page Bryan was appointed Minister to China in 1897, but did not go to Pekin; appointed Minister to Brazil in 1898; Minister to Switzerland in 1902; Minister to Portugal in 1903 and Minister to Belgium in December, 1909.

Anderson's Previous Service.

Mr. Anderson was appointed secretary of the Embassy at London in 1891 and secretary of the Embassy at Rome in 1895, serving at that post until 1897, when he resigned. He was captain and assistant adjutant-general, United States Volunteers, during the Spanish-American war.

John Ridgely Carter was secretary to the Ambassador at London for two years, and in 1906 was appointed second secretary of the embassy; appointed first secretary in 1905 and promoted to be Minister to the Balkan States in 1909.

John B. Jackson has been in the diplomatic service since 1893, serving as second secretary at Berlin, secretary at Berne, Switzerland; at Constantinople and Vienna, and diplomatic agent in Bulgaria. Minister to Greece and Roumania, Minister to Persia and Minister to Cuba.

Mr. Beaupre was appointed secretary of legation at Guatemala in 1897, secretary at Bogota in 1899, Minister to Columbia in 1903, to the Argentine Republic in 1905, and to the Netherlands, April 2, 1908.

Lloyd Bryce was a member of the 50th Congress, and from 1889 until 1896 he was the owner of the North American Review.

Well-Known Harvard Man.

Larz Anderson is one of the best-known and wealthiest citizens of Boston and a very public-spirited man. Six months ago it was rumored in Washington that he had been picked by Mr. Taft primarily for a high diplomatic berth.

He was born in Paris in 1865 while his parents were visiting Europe and prepared for Harvard, where he graduated in 1888 at Phillips Exeter. He was very prominent at Harvard being a member of the Alpha Delta Phi, Dicksy and Hasty Pudding Clubs. He had been to the Harvard Law School for two years when he accepted a diplomatic service appointment offered him by President Harrison. When Ambassador Bayard, under President Cleveland, succeeded Ambassador Lincoln, the latter's administration ended and he resigned but promoted Mr. Anderson.

Great wealth is regarded as requisite for a high diplomatic post. Mr. Anderson had it. He married, in 1887, Miss Isabella Perkins, daughter of Commodore George H. Perkins, U. S. N. He is very democratic in spirit and a strong Republican in politics. He represented Boston on the campaign fund which his party raised to elect President Taft. He was captain and assistant Adjutant-General of United States volunteers during the war with Spain.

MAN HYSTERICAL AT JUDGE'S FEET

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 8.—When a verdict of probable guilt was returned against him in the United States District Court here to-day, Domenics Capolo, an Italian, became hysterical and threw himself to the floor at the judge's feet. Capolo was charged with having passed a counterfeit one-dollar bill. He was held for the Federal Grand Jury in $2,500 bonds.

CHURCH AROUSED AT ASTOR

The coming marriage of Colonel John Jacob Astor to Miss Madeleine Force, the New York beauty, has roused the highest church throughout the entire country, and bishops and rectors alike join in saying that the couple will have a difficult time in getting a clergyman of that faith to marry them because of the fact that Colonel Astor was divorced.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Chalmers Richmond of St. John's Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, who made a bitter attack on the marriage and New York and Newport society in his sermon on Sunday, followed it up to-day with a declaration that he proposed to keep up the fight, and then made use of some very vigorous language in a denunciation of the marriage and fashionable society in general. Dr. Richmond blames the women of the land.

"Nowhere else than in America," he said, "may he found women who frankly sell themselves and their children to the highest bidder."

Bishop Perry of Rhode Island hints that the marriage cannot take place in that State. Colonel Astor is forbidden by the terms of his divorce to marry in the State of New York.

Council Must Approve.

Mrs. Astor got an absolute divorce from Colonel Astor in New York, when there is only one cause for it. The details if the divorce were never made public. According to the divorce canon of the Episcopal Church and J. Pierpont Morgan was one of the men who helped make the church law against the marriage of divorced people who were in the wrong—the marriage of Colonel Astor would not be sanctioned by the church until it had been approved in council of bishops and under the circumstances it is decided risk permission would hardly be granted.

Colonel Astor and his bride-to-be are at Newport. The young woman, with her father and mother, is at the Beechwood. Colonel Astor's villa. Colonel Astor is planning a dinner party to be given there on Friday evening of this week and a grand ball to follow soon in honor of the girl whom he is to marry.

Because of the wide publicity that has been given the approaching nuptials of the couple—and it is believed that the ceremony will be performed at Newport—Colonel Astor and his fair fiancee attract great attention wherever they appear.

While society is shocked at this latest development of the Astor-Force romance, the authorities of the Episcopal Church remain adamant on the question. There is one exception. He is the Rev. Percy S. Grant of New York, who it was announced to-day has been asked by Colonel Astor to go to Newport and officiate at the ceremony.

Dr. Grant Silent.

Rev. Mr. Grant refused both on the question of whether he has or will consent to perform the ceremony or what are his views of the attitude of his church on the remarriage of divorced persons.

Other church leaders are outspoken, how ever, in their denunciation of the match. Bishop Perry of the Episcopal diocese of Rhode Island, under whose jurisdiction is Newport, that no clergyman of the denomination will be permitted to perform the ceremony.

In Newport, the Rev. Emery H. Porter, rector of Emmanuel Church, the most fashionable Episcopal congregation in Newport, which includes almost all the society leaders in its membership, makes the emphatic declaration: "There is not an Episcopal clergyman here who will marry Colonel Astor. I myself positively refuse to officiate at the wedding would be a civil one if at all."

From all over Rhode Island come statements from members of the Episcopal church that they will not officiate at the

MATTHEW HART LAID AT REST

NEW BEDFORD, Aug. 8.—Under rather men paid impressive tribute to-day at the funeral of Matthew J. Hart, secretary of the Weavers' Protective Association, which was held at St. James Church. More than 1,000 members of local unions accompanied the body from the home at No. 32 Thompson street to the church and thence to St. Mary's Cemetery. The bearers were associates of the deceased. Mass was sung by the Rev. Bernard Dowling.

Among those present were: John Connors, president of the Weavers' Protective Association; President Peter Cairns of the New Bedford Central Labor Union; Senator Samuel Rose, secretary of the Spinners' Union; John Hobin, secretary of the Union Printers' Union, and President John H. Hannigan, Vice-President Joseph H. Adams and George Plunkton of the Hospital Saturday Committee, in which organization Mr. Hart was prominent.

There were floral tributes from men prominent in labor organizations all over the State.

WEST END BOARD FAVORS 'L' LEASE

Nine out of the ten directors of the West End Street Railway voted at a special meeting to-day in favor of the lease of the railroad with the Boston Elevated. Charles M. Baker was the director who was opposed. The directors voted to call a meeting of the stockholders of the road to meet at Wesleyan Hall, at 10 o'clock, on September 6, for the purpose of voting on the measure.

The directors of the road are: President J. R. Russell, Vice-President John Parkinson, Treasurer and Clerk Parkman Dexter, F. F. Atkins, C. M. Weld, Alfred Winsor, C. M. Baker, S. M. Weld, Moses Williams, C. A. Williams.

Passed by Legislature.

The merger bill and the subway bill have been passed by the Legislature, and they have been signed by the Governor. Both bills must now be accepted by the directors of both companies and by the stockholders of both companies.

The Elevated board of directors a few days ago voted to accept the provisions of the merger act and sent to every stockholder a statement urging that the act was for the best.

For the past week the West End directors have been busy men. They have studied the merger and subway bills and were prepared to take their final action to-day.

The directors are now drawing up a circular to send to the stockholders.

Sending Out Circulars.

Despite the favorable action of the directors, the so-called West End stockholders' protective committee is sending out a four-page circular to stockholders opposing the consolidation under the terms of the act. This committee is backed by owners of most of the preferred stock, who object to the terms of the act which allow them no more than 7 per cent. dividend.

The committee, comprising F. S. Mead, chairman; George S. Baldwin, Charles M. Cabot and William H. Slocum, assert that the following trustees are opposed to the acceptance of the act: Alfred Bowditch, Charles E. Cotting, Philip Dexter, Robert H. Gardiner, Augustus P. Loring, Lawrence Minot, Francis C. Welch, L. H. H. Johnson and Arthur L. Howard.

In the opinion of the committee, based on opinion by Attorneys Herbert Parker, Dana Malone and H. V. Cunningham, the consolidation act is unconstitutional.

Referring to the refusal of the Boston Elevated to allow its books to be audited under the advice of counsel, the committee says: "Their refusal alone furnishes us sufficient reason for declining the proffered

GETS MILLIONTH PATENT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Francis R. Hoites of Akron, O., was officially awarded to-day the millionth patent by the United States patent office. The patent is for an automobile tire.

HOME RULE NEAR, SAYS CHURCHILL

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Through Home Secretary Winston Churchill, as its mouthpiece, the ministry spoke out its plans to-day with boldness on the Irish question.

"I predict th[illegible] one of a measure by the present parliament, giving Home Rule to Ireland," was the secretary Churchill's answer to-day to the challenge from the Tory benches that the government show its hand as to its Irish policy.

The ministerial declaration is now before the country, and no man can say he misunderstands the meaning.

The present Parliament has at least three years of office before it. Within that time, and without calling another general election, a bill will be put through Parliament restoring to Ireland her right to national self-government. Premier Asquith has a majority of 120 behind him. This means he can carry all his bills by the House of Commons.

End the Power of Lords.

When the Home Rule bill goes up to the Lords they will reject it. The minority will send it up a second time and it will be thrown out by the Lords. This second rejection will end the power of the Lords over the bill.

It is framed and carried a third time in the House of Commons. It will not go to the Lords, but will be sent direct by Prime Minister straight to the King for his signature.

Parliament in Ireland.

Immediately afterward the act regarding a Parliament in Dublin, which will deal with Irish affairs alone, will be inscribed upon the statutes of Great Britain, and the acts and edicts of that Parliament will be supported and enforced by the police of Dublin.

Home Secretary Churchill's declaration clears the air. In a few days the Asquith cabinet will open an immense series of home rule meetings throughout England, Scotland and Wales for the purpose of stemming the flood of misrepresentation which the Tories have let loose upon every city and town of the United Kingdom.

CITY OF BELFAST IN A FOG CRASH

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 8.—Another near disaster incident to the fog that has visited New England shipping since Sunday occurred to-day in this harbor. The steamer City of Belfast, bound from Boston for Bangor, was approaching her wharf and was well inside the harbor when she struck the schooner Abel W. Parker, lumber laden and bound from Bangor for New Bedford. The schooner's stern was damaged and her davits were knocked away. The damage will be repaired here. The steamer was not injured.

NOON CONCERT ON THE COMMON

Five thousand people, sitting on the grass and on the slopes of the mound which is topped by the Soldiers' Monument, listened to the selections rendered by the Municipal band at the second noon time concert this season on the Common.

This is the second noontime concert on the Common. The first was held last week. Requests for selections had been so numerous in the last few days that the program to-day was composed entirely of request selections, and included selections from "Three Twins," the waltz time selection, "The Wedding of the Winds," a medley of Scotch, Irish and English airs, some passages from the "Tales of Hoffman," and closed with the "Star Spangled Banner." The program commenced at 12 o'clock and lasted until almost 2. There will be another noon concert next Tuesday.

Today's program was as follows:

March, "Under Harvard.....Sterbe
Overture, "Manoliti".....Auber
Selection, "The Three Twins".....Edwards

WELL, WELL, WELL! THEY WON'T SPOUT

Well, well!

Salmon Sirk says they don't spout enough—the wells don't.

Salmon is a real estate dealer. He has died a bit in equity in the Superior Court asking that a contract he made with the Walnut Avenue Company be declared void on account of misrepresentations. Salmon says that he contracted to buy seven artesian wells on the Woodchend property at Mattapan. He says he declared were guaranteed to spout 500 gallons of water per minute. Salmon intended to use the water as raw material in making artificial ice.

He experimented with the artesians for a test. He was pained to discover, he asserts, that the affair wells refused to spout more than seventy gallons per minute. So Salmon wants the contract revoked. He also wants back $3,000 which he says he deposited to bind the aqueous bargain.

"HOLE" AS EVIDENCE IN M'NAMARA CASE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 8.—A hole in the ground caused by the explosion of a bomb will figure in the trial of the McNamara brothers for the alleged dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times. The hole was dug up and boxed for preservation Sunday night. On the morning of October 1, two unexploded bombs were found in the residences of General H. G. Otis, owner of the Times, and J. C. Kaspare, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, respectively. Men carrying off the bombs, inclosed in soft cases from the Otis grounds when he heard a clock begin to tick. They stopped the clock and ran. The bomb went off, tearing a large hole in the ground before the Kaspare home.

COMMITS SUICIDE AT FIANCEE'S DOOR

HAVERHILL, Aug. 8.—On the doorstep of the home of his sweetheart, Nellie Bourassa, at No. 347 River street this city, eighteen-year-old Joseph Brunoau to-day pointed a revolver to his temple and killed himself, after calling upon the girl to come down and forgive him.

Brunoau had been calling on Miss Bourassa for some time. Of late the young man's mind has been giving way, and the girl's parents ordered her not to have anything further to do with him. This it is believed, aggravated Brunoau's mental trouble.

Earlier in the evening the young man, who lives at No. 5 Apple street, had asked the parents to pray for him. Believing that his request was simply the vagary of his weakened mind, they complied with his request.

The bullet shot aroused the whole neighborhood. In alarm the Bourassas ran to the street, and found the young man on the doorstep with blood streaming from a wound in his temple. By his side there lay the revolver with which he shot himself. Close at hand was a note addressed to his sweetheart in which he asked her to forgive him.

SOCIETY MAN WEDS SERVANT

Lynn society went into a tizzy flutter to-day at the news that Joseph W. Pinkham a member of the wealthy younger set of that city, had eloped and married Miss Anna Peterson, one of the staff of domestics in the home of his father, Dr. Joseph H. Pinkham.

Dr. Pinkham is medical examiner for Lynn district and a leading owning agent of lines of Lynn real estate. His son has been handling the factors really interesting, however, is the young woman prominent in the society activities in the Lynn city.

Miss Peterson has been regarded as to-date as one of the most eligible bachelors in Lynn. The news of his elopement came to-day with a prominence of shock.

Came From Sweden.

Six months ago an unusually pretty Swedish girl came on this country from Stockholm. Her name was Anna Peterson. She could speak but little English. But what she could speak sounded mighty attractive coming from her pretty mouth.

Miss Peterson secured employment in the Pinkham household. She took up it most satisfaction, not only for her intelligence and pleasant address, but was also credited for her good looks. She is a typical Northland beauty, with pink and white complexion and smiling blue eyes. Her slender graceful figure is fitting complement to her other charms.

Honeymoon in Sweden.

Joseph W. Pinkham admired the pretty Swedish girl, quite apart from her more than that, he fell in love. But, uncertain how a courtship of one of the family domestics might appear to parents, he wooed the girl at discreetly that the family did not suspect.

Without the knowledge of his sons infatuation, Dr. Pinkham occasionally mentioned the rare beauty of Miss Peterson. But he never thought at these times that he was praising his future daughter-in-law.

The first that Lynn society knew of the impending came to-day when it was learned through a cablegram from Sweden to-day that Joseph W. Pinkham and Miss Peterson were man and wife. They had eloped to Kennebunkport, Me., where they were married. Then they came to Boston and remarried for a honeymoon trip to Stockholm, Sweden, their home city.

It is understood in Lynn that Dr. Pinkham is not displeased at his son's choice of a bride. Friends of the family say that the elopement blushing is already on the way to Stockholm.

SECRETARY MEYER ARRIVES IN LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 8.—George von L. Meyer, American Secretary of the Navy, arrived in London to-day and was met at the railway station by Commander Edward Simpson, naval attache at the American embassy. The secretary will be the guest of Ambassador and Mrs. Reid at Dorchester House, where a big dinner in his honor will be given to-morrow evening. Members of the British cabinet, admirals and naval experts have been invited to meet Mr. Meyer on this occasion.

TELLS HOW SHE ROUTED THIEVES

Mrs. Harriett Young of Jamaica Plain is a slender woman, qualifying only in the lightweight class, but she has an ounce of pluck and will tust she runs two thieves at a time.

Two young men who attempted to rob the cash drawer at Mrs. Young's crockery store at No. 635 centre street were so routed for her. She pushed one down the cellar stairs and turned a lock on him. Then she grappled with the other, made him drop the money and drove him from the premises. Mrs. Young gave to-day her own story of how she meets thieves, two to one, and wins.

"I was sitting in the store of my store at 6 o'clock in the evening. I noticed two young men loitering around. A second later I heard a noise behind me. I turned and came in. I walked on her. As she left, these two young men entered.

Crowded Into Cellar.

"Got any cash-offers?" one asked.

"I showed one of galvanized iron. It didn't suit them. I asked if they wanted a wooden one. They didn't answer direct, but started snarling to themselves.

"One moved over near the open cellar door. The other spied the money in the cash drawer. I rushed to the one near the cellar door. He fell back. I pushed him through the door, slammed the door, turned the key and took to the other one. He's a fighter. I knew the first one was safe in the cellar for a while anyhow.

"The second one had the money in his hand, about twenty dollars. I tackled him. I clutched the money away from him. I pulled his hair. Then I managed to get my hand in the cash receiver and keep behind the counter. It is loaded, but hasn't been used for twelve years. I knew it.

"The fellow managed to get the revolver away from me. But I didn't lose my head. He ran out, indeed, taking the revolver from after him and screaming.

Escaped By Window.

"Just then the other fellow came running toward a car. He had climbed out through a rather window. Both got away. Some firemen came in answer to my screams. But the thieves escaped. I had lost only the revolver.

"No, I wasn't a bit afraid. But I wasn't going to be robbed. I would show those two chaps if I saw them again."

Jamaica Plain police are now looking for two young men, one five feet six inches tall, the other not quite so tall. The taller one wore dark clothes and a straight brimmed straw hat. The other wore light clothes and a straw hat.

$18,996 TO CLEAR GOEBEL MYSTERY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 8.—It cost $18,996 to run down the murderers of Governor William Goebel, according to the report of the commission in charge of the fund of $100,000 appropriated by the Legislature in 1900 for that purpose. The committee now asks its discharge.

Mildred Sherman, Won By Camoys

Miss Sherman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, and has won her parents over to consent to her marriage with Lord Camoys. She is one of the famous Sherman twins and is a beautiful girl.

NEWPORT, Aug. 8.—The happiest girl in Newport to-day is Miss Mildred Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman, and sister of Mrs. Lawrence L. Gillespie. Her engagement to Lord Camoys of England is announced by her parents.

A short time ago the AMERICAN exclusively announced this engagement. In an effort to contradict that announcement when Mr. Sherman stated he had nothing to say on the subject, newspapers denied the engagement for Mr. Sherman without his authority.

POPE SLIGHTLY BETTER TO-DAY

ROME, Aug. 8.—The Pope passed a bad night. He is being constantly watched by his attendants. His condition this morning was pronounced somewhat improved, although his fever persists.

Dr. Guiseppi Petacci, private physician to his Holiness, and Dr. Ettore Marchiafava, consulting physician, visited the Pope early to-day.

Two women, the Pope's sisters, remained at the Vatican all night to nurse the patient. It was the first time in history that women had stayed at the Vatican.

Pope Suffered Relapse.

After official reports were issued from the Vatican of a relapse suffered by the venerable Pope grave fears are entertained here for the ultimate recovery of the pontiff.

That his condition was serious before, was quite evident when his medical advisers decided that because of the heat the Pope should not participate in the celebration of the eighth anniversary of his coronation. It was arranged that the anniversary celebration should be conducted by Cardinal Merry Del Val, the Papal Secretary of State. It was several hours after this decision that the relapse of the Pope was reported.

Says Trouble to Gout.

Dealing with the illness of the Pope, the Observatore Romano, the Vatican organ, published the following official statement to-night: "The Pope has almost completely recovered from the recent affection of the bronchi, but he has been suffering since last night from a slight attack of gout in the right knee.

It was pointed out that Pope Pius had been nine years a cardinal, nine years a bishop and nine years Patriarch of Venice. Under the sequence a superstition had arisen that he would be Pope only nine years. It was that the Pope was ill and that the holy father had a feeling that his next consistory must be his last.

Temperature of 100.

Pope Pius has held only four consistories since his accession to the papal throne, made vacant by the death of Leo XIII. The last consistory was held nearly three years ago. This period is unusual, especially considering the fact of the increasing vacancies through death in the college of cardinals. The next consistory is the one at which it is expected the red hat will be conferred on Archbishop Quigley of Chicago.

There is a dearth of information as to the Pope's condition when dispatches from this city to the United States on February 1 last declared that he was suffering from influenza. It was stated that his temperature was 104 and all audiences had been suspended.

February 16 the Pope was allowed to leave his bed for a short time.

SMELLS GAS, LIGHTS MATCH; EXPLOSION

Attracted by the smell of gas, Charles David, forty-one years old, who with his wife and two children is in charge of the abandoned building of the Boston Female Asylum in Washington street, between Asylum street and Leverett place, went into the basement this morning to investigate. David lit a match and was almost stunned by the force of the explosion, followed by falling boards and timbers. He was bruised about the head and arms. He said that he used no gas and thought that the valve from the company's main on Asylum street had been left open and turned on by boys. The police caused an alarm of fire.

SEEK PORTER IN NICKERSON CASE

It was reported in Boston to-day by private detectives who are investigating the killing of Mrs. Lilly C. Nickerson on the steamer Georgia, en route to New York from Providence on the night of July 29, that it had been found that the woman had been choked as well as having had her skull fractured by a blow on the forehead.

The search by the detectives took up two directions—one for a Boston man who was a friend of the dead woman, and the other for a colored porter who was discharged from the Georgia soon after the murderous crime, as it is now character-ized, was committed.

It was learned to-day that when the body of the woman was picked up from the sea her wedding ring was missing. It is hardly believable she would have been going to New York to meet her husband without a wedding ring.

It is believed that the man who killed Miss Nickerson tore her wedding ring from her hand.

Woman Not a Suicide.

Coroner Eugene H. Lincoln of Providence to-day made the flat statement that the woman did not commit suicide.

"From the evidence of Medical Examiner Stimson, we feel sure that Mrs. Nickerson did not take her own life," said Mr. Lincoln, who, with Coroner D. F. Gifford of Little Compton, is conducting the inquest.

"Have you believe she met with foul play," he was asked.

"Well, I don't think I should put it quite that way," was the reply. "I must wait until all the evidence has been heard."

The theory of the Joy Line officials that Mrs. Nickerson's death was caused by her head coming in contact with the steel guard rail after she leaped with suicidal intent, is said to be completely knocked out by evidence in the possession of the Rhode Island authorities.

Was Thrown Into Water.

In the first place, it is pointed out, even though Mrs. Nickerson did leap from the boat, her body would have missed the guard rail by several feet. Then, they say, so blow that could result from contact with the guard rail caused death, according to the medical examiner's testimony.

"The woman was dead when her body was hurled from the steamer," said an official to-day. "The task of leaping over the boat's bihg deck rail would have required considerable strength, and had there been a spark of life in the body when it struck wfter some water would have been inhaled into the lungs."

Another witness, W. D. Todd, first mate on board the steamer Georgia, was found to-day. Mr. Todd says he saw Mrs. Nickerson about 9 o'clock the night she met her death. His story follows:

First Mate's Story.

"I was sitting with Purser Hamilton in his office on the main deck when Mrs. Nickerson came to deposit some money. It is rather unusual for a woman to deposit valuables with the purser, and that is the reason I took notice of her. She appeared just about 9 o'clock. After leaving her money with Hamilton she went upstairs to the saloon deck. That was the last I saw of her. I had a good look at her but I noticed nothing unusual in her appearance. She did not seem to be excited. There was nothing extraordinary about her. The next morning I heard that she had disappeared from the boat during the night. I was told that she probably committed suicide by leaping through her stateroom window and over the rail.

"I heard nothing on board about a story that a colored waiter was called to her room at 1 o'clock in the morning. And, of course, such a thing is absurd, as the Georgia was only a little more than two days out from New York at that time. I stayed up late the night she disappeared, but I heard no screams or any other alarm on board. Everything on deck was quiet, the same as on other nights."

Witnesses From Boston.

Two Boston cabmen, Michael Cusick and Patrick Duggan, each of whom knew Mrs. Nickerson and each of whom thinks he drove her home on the evening before she started on what proved her death journey, say they are perfectly willing to attend the inquest which is to be resumed to-morrow at Little Compton. R. I., and tell what they know of the past of the dead woman.

Charles le Mayo, who accompanied Mrs. Nickerson home on her last night in Boston, said also that he would testify at the inquest if he was wanted. Mayo said he could throw no light on the crime. He said he never met the woman before that night he accompanied her home and on the next evening he did not go with her to Providence as he could easily prove, he asserted.

FOUR ARRESTED AS CRACKSMEN

Federal officers rounded up to-day four of six men who are charged with being the automobile safe-cracking gang which robbed New Hampshire postoffices right and left last Winter.

The quartet caught in this "clean-up" includes "Pete the Dude," "Charley the Chicken," "Hamilton Jarvis" and "Detroit Goldy." They are now serving terms at East Cambridge jail for vagrancy. They were to be released to-day. Instead, they are rearrested by United States marshals.

These four, with two others now in custody, are charged with over a score of postoffice burglaries in New Hampshire, which netted loot to the extent of $5,000. The men were arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes. Howard, Kimball & Jenney represented the GLOBE for the New Hampshire District. They have been indicted here for the burglary of Candia Lake postoffice. Barry was held in $1,000 for a continued hearing on August 14, on a charge of robbing the North Billerica postoffice on February 6. The six men are called the "automobile" gang because they frequently used a high powered car in which to glide into town and to make a quick "getaway" after the burglary.

"Charley the Chicken," as he is called in criminal slang, is known on the police books as John Barry. He has several aliases for a long list of crimes to his credit, but has served time in Massachusetts for robbery in Lynn and at one time showing in Maine. He comes from New York.

"Pete the Dude."

"Pete the Dude," is Thomas Kelley. He is called an expert safe-blower and the "soap man," or dynamite handler of the gang. He is a native of the City of Brotherly Love. He has operated in New York, Cleveland, Buffalo, Pittsburg and Toronto. He is called a "road man," and carries in his body a bullet given him by a fellow thug in a bowery shooting in New York.

"Hamilton Jarvis" is John Kennedy in private life. He is a native of Montreal and has a choice record. He blew the safe at Anderson, Ind., his sixty days served four years at Thomaston for the blow at a safe at Fairfield, Me., broke jail and continued his safe-breaking career. He is the veteran of the gang.

"Detroit Goldy" is George Howard. Like "Hamilton Jarvis" he is a native of Detroit, as his name implies. He rejoices in ten aliases and a criminal record of twenty years standing. He began by stealing gold from dental offices. Then he graduated into house-breaking and finally rose to be an expert safe-cracker. He is reckoned by the police as one of the best in the business. His specialty is arranging the "muff," or layers of blankets to deaden explosions.

Headquarters in Boston.

Postoffice Inspector Robinson was assigned to the cases of New Hampshire postoffice blowing. After months of investigation, aided by the police of Boston and Lowell, he centred on a gang of six making their headquarters in Boston.

Two of the gang are already in the grasp of the law, being held by federal authorities, awaiting trial. Of the four arrested to-day Keller, Kennedy and Howard are under indictment. Evidence against Barry will be presented at once to the federal grand jury.

Restores Natural Color to Gray Hair.

Not a Stain or Dye.

That growing old and gray is unwelcome to most of us is shown by the almost unbelievable quantity of hair dyes and stains that are sold each year in the United States. Aside from the danger that attends the use of these preparations, it is well known that even the best of them cannot give permanent results and that they soon color the hair unevenly and in patches, making the user ridiculous to any close observer.

Printed below is the prescription or formula for a preparation that is not a stain or dye and contains no coloring matter, but which rapidly restores natural color to gray, streaked or faded hair in a manner which is truly remarkable, solely by its action in reviving and stimulating the color cells of the hair roots, supplying them with the natural food and oil nourishment which they require.

The ingredients are all simple, standard and inexpensive pharmaceuticals, any of which you can get at any druggist. Mix them at home and you can do it for a trifle. Allow it to stand a couple days before using. Here is the prescription:

Bay Rum ..... 8 oz.
Lavona de Composee ..... 2 oz.
Menthol Crystals ..... ½ dr.

Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Its effect is perfectly harmless and it is recommended not only for the purpose named but as a truly wonderful hair grower.

PLANS OF TOGO'S VISIT TO BOSTON

Arrangements are being completed for the entertainment of Admiral Togo, the hero of the Russo-Japanese war, during his stay in Boston. He will leave New York at 5.35 on the afternoon of Wednesday, August 16, arriving here at 11 o'clock. He will go direct to his hotel, which has not yet been chosen.

On the morning of the next day he will call on Acting Mayor Collins at the latter's office at 11 o'clock. The Acting Mayor is expected to return the call. He will then be shown over the Charlestown Navy Yard by the officials of the United States Government, and in the afternoon will inspect the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy. A banquet at the Algonquin Club will be tendered the visiting Japanese by Rear Admiral Francis Winslow, Thursday evening.

Friday morning will be devoted to seeing the Boston Public Library and the Art Museum. The admiral will be taken through the grounds of Harvard College after luncheon, and will leave Boston at 4.20 that afternoon.

FOSS STANDS BY HIS ACCUSATION

Newspapers all over the State have endeavored to get from Governor Foss some supplementary statement to the one he gave the Sunday AMERICAN. Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham and Representative Norman H. White, each of whom wants to oppose him as the Republican nominee for Governor, are demanding that the Governor either prove or retract his statements about the way the State's business is conducted. The Governor's attitude towards these requests and demands is pretty well outlined in the following, from to-day Boston Journal:

"The Governor only made most casual comments on the matter yesterday, when he said he guessed he did not 'see any thing which called for him to retract.'

"George Harlow, his secretary, said the when the Governor did get ready to reply he would 'just drive them up,' the 'they being Mr. Frothingham and Representative Norman H. White, who are both calls for the retraction."

ASTOR MAY NOT GET MINISTER TO WED HIM, CHURCH IS ALL UPSET

EPISCOPAL CHURCH CANON LAW ON MARRIAGE OF DIVORCEES

Have to the Episcopal Church law which, it is claimed, will prevent an Episcopal clergyman from marrying Colonel Astor:

Canon 29, section 3 of the Digest of Canons of the Protestant Episcopal Church, adopted in convention, 1910: No minister, knowingly, after due inquiry, shall solemnize the marriage of any person who has been or is the husband or the wife of any other person then living, from whom she has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage. But this Canon shall not be held to apply to the innocent party in a divorce for adultery.

ceremony no matter how tempting the inducements.

Word comes from Newport that the society there is shocked as never before at the storm of ecclesiastical censure that is raining down on the heads of Colonel Astor, his fiancee and members of the Force family.

Thus far Colonel Astor is silent on the matter. If the protests have stirred him he has not shown it. Mrs. Force, mother of the fair bride-to-be, on the other hand, of the parties most directly concerned who has commented on the attack made by Dean Hodges, if such it may be called, is vague.

When Mrs. Ava Willing Astor obtained her divorce a little more than a year ago, on the same day Colonel Astor should not be permitted to participate in the Holy Communion as long as his divorced wife remained alive.

The fact Mrs. Astor is not a member of the William Force, father of Miss Madeline Force, is by Newport society considered as making a selection of contingent. It was understood that Bishop Lawrence expected to have the marriage ceremony performed in that city.

Announcement Is Blow.

Following the denunciation of Colonel Astor and his proposed marriage by the Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, rector of the pulpit in St. John's Church in Philadelphia, Sunday night, the announcement by Bishop Perry comes as a telling blow upon Astor. Indeed, in the Episcopalian church society is mourning if the marriage will ever take place.

Permission for any Episcopal clergyman to perform such a marriage would depend entirely upon the attitude taken by the parties to the marriage, it was said by Bishop Perry. "If the papers are of a character which would permit the clergy to perform such a marriage it would be permitted, but the decision rests entirely upon the papers."

Upon the question as to the action for the bishop to decide, since it is a purely legal question. But I would not advise any clergyman in my diocese which another diocese has granted a divorce to perform the marriage sanction. That is all there is to it."

Dr. Hodges Speaks.

Around the Corner, New York, said:

"Without doubt the Rev. George Richmond Hodges when he was rector of Colonial Astor and Miss Force united in the Episcopal church. The Episcopal church does not recognize in its canons the divorce. Some favored few are allowed to remarry, others are refused. I cannot say the reason why divorce was obtained. I have no doubt that the marriage ceremony was well taken."

Dr. Richmond said in his sermon that the wedding "is an outrage to common decency, to common sense, to common law," and added, "The Episcopal Church is opposed to this alliance. There is not an Episcopal clergyman in America or England whose John Jacob Astor can buy to perform the wedding ceremony."

If the couple are married by a New York minister the ceremony can be held outside the State, for the divorce decree will not allow Colonel Astor to reside within the State of New York.

Dr. Richmond Firm.

"My congregation approves my denunciation of the projected Astor-Force disgrace. My Bishop understands me and my views, and approves them. I intend to denounce the Astor bargain again and again, and to do all I can to make it impossible for that wedding to be solemnized by a clergyman of this church.

The Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond made his declaration after a conference with the vestmen of Christ Episcopalian church, Philadelphia, of which he is the rector. He was attacking the idle rich of Newport and New York and denouncing the proposed alliance of Colonel Astor and Miss Force, created a sensation.

Early in the day Dr. Richmond received a summons from the Episcopal bishop. Later he admitted that while Bishop Mackay-Smith and he would not talk of the record, the bishop was ready to stand by him in the attitude he has taken.

"What impelled me to speak as plainly" he reported, "it was because the welfare of the Episcopal Church and of this whole United States is concerned in some plain speaking be done at this time. The proposition to marry of the divorced son of the Astor family with a young girl polished a concrete example, and I used it to give point and emphasis upon temptations of the day."

The Episcopal church it is no longer to be branded as the exclusive property of the rich. We are overwhelmingly the church of the people.

"Fashionable New York and Newport must be taught that this change has come upon us. They will realize it when they see that Astor, with all his millions, cannot buy a clergyman of the Episcopal faith to remarry him.

"Not only did I intend to serve notice upon all clergymen of the Episcopalian church that they must obey the canon enacted years ago in Richmond, but I also meant to call upon the bishops to the attention of ministers of all faiths, so that they, too, might close their churches and their homes against Astor.

"J. Pierpont Morgan was one of those who worked for the enactment of this canon. His great friend, Bishop Doane of Albany, was the most active worker. Mr. Astor will not find the Morgan influence exerted with him in the future. He will undoubtedly make to find a complaisant clergyman. He can get a man unfaithful to his vows, but he waits a church wedding above everything else.

"I know this set pretty intimately. I was in Newport last year. I have since listened to these people, and know what manner of men they are. They believe their money will buy everything—women, church, society, morality, approval, immunity from retribution. Those who believe that way are the worst. Jack, at the Gaiety, the Casino, the Dressing, all furnishing grist for the divorce mill. What are they doing to the homes and hearts of those families doing with their wives? What do they care for public opinion and churchly canons? Shall we be so corrupted as to establish as they are insolent and sinful?

Hits Church Integrity.

"This Astor matter has to do with integrity and the purity of the Episcopalian church. The Astors, including John Jacob Astor, are powerful members of our community. I don't know anything about the Force family. So many people are merely climbers, dazzled by the Astor millions, that it is impossible to get at the conditions, that an Episcopal clergyman will marry them. Such a marriage would be in absolute defiance of the Church and the law. It would be performed the ceremony would be promptly unfrocked.

"Let me tell you who are responsible for the scandals, divorces and demoralization of American society. The women who run after money, the money, and clothes mad. They hunger and thirst for the limelight. They demand a place to which to eat and sleep. They scheme to automobile party. They dress to kill with such immodesty that their limbs and bodies are exposed to the gaze of all who wish to look. They lust for wealth and for the evil leadership in fashionable society.

"In all these things, they outstrip the women of all other nations. Nowhere else may be found women who frankly sell themselves and their children to the highest bidder.

"Smart Set Deteriorating."

"The women in our smart set are fast deteriorating morally and spiritually. They spend more time before the mirror than in that of their husbands; more of fast autos than of their babies, and more of big fat company than home nature. They are foolish, flippant, purely sinful and without conscience. They love 'feeds,' fun, frolic and fast life. They motor to 'Tokio' and 'Ti tickle you.'

Dr. Richmond said to-day he was dealing in generalities only when he suggested that only one Episcopal bishop could be found who would officiate at the ceremony.

"There is but one class of Episcopal ministers who would perform such a marriage," said Dr. Richmond. "I mean by that some man who owns his church body and soul—a man who owns his congregation and is in a position where the King can do no wrong.

"As an example, Dr. F. De Witt Talmage of the Chambers-Wyle Memorial Church some time ago married a couple either one or both of whom had been divorced. While Dr. Talmage is a Presbyterian, had it not been that his congregation loves him and will stand behind him to not an Episcopal clergyman here who would a thing he would have got into serious trouble. As it was the incident, after an explanation, was forgotten.

"There is no clergyman in the Episcopal church just as strongly intrenched as Dr. Talmage. One of these clergymen, in defiance the Astor-Force ceremony, but the clergyman that assists in uniting that unholy alliance should be run out of the church.

Comment on Narragansett.

"I preached that sermon Sunday hoping it would be given wide publicity. One of my purposes in preaching it was to call the attention of Episcopal clergymen throughout the country to the fact that they have no right to perform the marriage of divorced persons of the church forbid it—the ministers who assists in the ceremony is unfrocked, but what great good will the unfrocking do, if he has been a party to that marriage?"

Dr. Richmond, who several years ago was a curate at Trinity, New York, recently received an invitation to occupy the pulpit at Narragansett Episcopal church. In speaking of this to-day he said:

"After that sermon of Sunday I feared some of my good society friends at Narragansett will not wish to hear my sermons. They don't like the unpalatable and I look for a letter by almost any mail declining the invitation to occupy the pulpit."

"Should Colonel Astor and Madeleine Force can be married by an Episcopal clergyman he must confess a conceit of Episcopal bishops that he was the innocent party in the divorce proceedings that resulted in the dissolution of his marriage to his former wife."

This statement was given by Bishop Suffragan Charles S. Burch of the Episcopal church of the New York diocese, to-day in Bellport, L. I.

"The laws of the Episcopal Church are most strict in regard to the remarriage of divorced persons," continued Bishop Burch. "and one of its canons distinctly states that no one who has been divorced and contemplates entering matrimony again must appear before the bishop of his diocese or ecclesiastical authority and prove that the decree of divorce is final and that he was the innocent party in the case or was the innocent party. If this is not done the clergyman is subject to trial for the marriage ceremony.

"The laws of the bishops and ministers of the Episcopal Church are unalterably opposed to divorced persons remarrying at all, although the laws of our church do not prohibit absolutely their remarriage.

Speaking of the denunciation of the impending nuptials by the Rev. George Chalmers Richmond in Philadelphia on Sunday, Bishop Burch said:

"Voices Church Feeling."

"When I first read the published accounts of Mr. Richmond's sermon, I could not believe that any sane man had made the statements he is reported to have made. All in all, however, Mr. Richmond voices in a great extent the real feeling of the Episcopal Church on Colonel Astor's second marriage. It is dangerous to have been a bit intemperate, but then he may know more of the case than we do, or be the average person does, for I recall that the proceedings of the case were kept secret. Whether some of the things he said are true or not I cannot say. Mr. Richmond has a most excellent record, and although I do not always agree with him, believe him to have splendid standing in the church.

"I wondered for a long time who is the only bona fide clergyman who Mr. Richmond said is the only Episcopal clergyman in America or England who would officiate at the marriage of Colonel Astor and Miss Force. My mail was heavy. I have not received permission in remarry from the Episcopal council before I go to wed the couple. A respectable minority at least of the 3,000 Episcopal clergymen in this country would be willing to marry them.

Pawtucket Minister Firm.

The Rev. Dr. Marcon Law, rector of St. Paul's Church, Pawtucket, said: "I do not believe a Protestant Episcopal clergyman in Rhode Island would perform such a ceremony. Certainly I would not officiate. Any party in such a marriage would be excommunicated by the bishop of the State where he claims a residence."

The Rev. Dr. George Mcvilley Fiske of St. Stephen's Church said: "I would not perform such a ceremony and do not believe an Episcopal clergyman can be found in Rhode Island that will do it. I am surprised if any one in this diocese is asked to officiate."

The Rev. Emery H. Porter, dean of the Episcopal clergymen of Newport and rector of fashionable Emanuel Church, said to-day:

"No one can tell what may happen, but I cannot see how any Episcopalian clergyman can marry Colonel Astor or any other divorced party. I should say the marriage ceremony would not be read in my church. Change should be a civil one, if at all. There is no Episcopal clergyman here who will marry Colonel Astor. Such a marriage as that would be declared. 'There is no essential difference between his court-ships of Miss Force and the pursuit of Evelyn Thaw by the late Stanford White.'

The Rev. Emery H. Porter, dean of the Episcopal clergymen of Newport and rector of fashionable Emanuel Church, said today:

"No one can tell what may happen, but I cannot see how any Episcopal clergyman can marry Colonel Astor or any other divorced party. I should say the marriage would

WOMAN AIDS NAHANT FIGHT

Suffragettes take notice:

The question of women's rights was slated to become a factor at the special town meeting at Nahant, which began at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Mrs. Henry Sigourney, a wealthy widow and one of the society leaders, went to the meeting with the avowed intention of backing up "Dan" Finnerty in his efforts to get what he deems a safe and adequate structure for the new town hall building.

It was thought that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who makes a point of coming on from Washington for the annual March meeting to serve as moderator, would be acceptable to each faction, even in this crisis.

The town has appropriated $75,000 for a new hall. Finnerty and his side wish to tack on $5,000, deeming that extra money necessary to secure a fireproof structure. This was a special indignation meeting in the old hall last night, led by Finnerty, at which Mrs. Sigourney put in appearance and championed the Finnerty side.

Previous to to-day's meeting Mrs. Sigourney explained why she went to the hall. She desires a thoroughly fireproof structure. She thinks Daniel G. Finnerty and his side are all right.

"I felt a bit embarrassed at the hall last night when I found I was the only woman there," said Mrs. Sigourney to-day, "but women have their rights, especially when they contribute heavily to pay the town's expenses."

She controls property left by her late husband and is entitled to a full share of the income. She has schools in Nahant road and she believes that, in the matter of the new town hall, the women, especially if they pay taxes, have a right to their interest. She said to-day:

"The reason I went to the special meeting in the town hall last night was because I am a heavy taxpayer of this town. I want a substantial, fireproof structure for the new town hall. I expect that my children and myself will attend exercises in that hall. Any semi-fireproof building would be no protection to the townspeople who frequent the hall from time to time.

"I went to the meeting last night with the understanding that it was a regular town meeting. I believed that I had a right to be there, so I went. Everybody appeared to be more or less excited. But I was glad to see that some men—especially Mr. Finnerty—are looking after our interests. Mr. Finnerty wants the town to have a building of which everyone who pays taxes here will be proud.

"Town halls are not built every day. The building of this should be free from politics. By the expenditure of a little more money we can have a fireproof, handsome structure. I shall do all in my power to further that idea, which is being put forth by Mr. Finnerty.

FOIL POTHIER'S GAMBLING WAR

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 8.—Governor Pothier is thwarted in his efforts to put a stop to gambling in Rhode Island. And not only that, but one set of gamblers has beaten out the other while setting the law at the same time at defiance.

At the Pier recent moves in the war against and among the gamblers amuse Summer visitors. Town Council, known to be friendly to the "Elm Cottage" proprietor, who urged materially in their election, has stationed two police officers outside the door of the Narragansett Club. Under orders from Governor Pothier, Sheriff Wilcox has three deputy sheriffs watching out for the entire gambling situation, and these deputies stood watch outside Joyce's "Elm Cottage" as well as the other resorts where gambling had flourished in the past.

The move of the town police aroused a counter one by those of the Governor. It has succeeded in closing the Narragansett Club for good, as announcement has been made that the place will not open this Summer, and apparently indicate that the announcement is made in good faith. For further move, the red light flickers now and then in the sumptuous palace of "Major" Slattery, but there has been no attempt at opening. The doors are kept locked and only the caretaker enters the place. "Jack" Joyce of the "Elm Cottage" has run completely over "Mike" Slattery, so far as conditions at the Pier are concerned.

It is doubtful if Slattery will attempt to open. The town policemen are stationed in front of the Narragansett Club, only a few steps away from Slattery's. Meanwhile the "Elm Cottage" keeps all right, with the proprietor himself in charge seated by the door and combining all powers.

Governor Pothier's new plan is to have "eyes at the front" outside the deputy sheriffs. "What can I do," the Governor says, "when the sheriffs tell me there is no gambling at the Pier?"

Two men, said to be friends of the Governor and sent to close him up, left stations as they really exist at the Pier, figured in the raid at Major Slattery's Hotel. They drove in an auto to Watch Hill, where Sheriff Wilcox was sojourning, and hurried the sheriff and deputy to the Pier. The sheriff and his men went up stairs into Wooley's, leaving the others outside to prevent people from coming in. This was at 2 o'clock in the morning. After an absence of a half hour the sheriffs returned and all of the men left on watch outside were told that a wheel had been found. The gamblers invited inside, but the wheel had vanished.

COLONEL GREEN ON IDEAL WOMAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 8. — "No, I haven't any idea of marrying at present, but when I do I'll marry a woman, not a clothes line."

Colonel Edward H. R. Green, the son of Mrs. Hetty Green, in this slightly cynic sentence denied that he had any intention of deserting the ranks of the bachelors. His mother, from whom he will inherit one of the greatest fortunes of the age, is reported to have exacted promises from him not to marry for twenty years. The period of probation was reported to have recently expired, but the six-foot-four colonel from Texas not only denied the existence of any such pact, but expressed his ideas on matrimony.

"It would seem that New York women have no idea of the real meaning of marriage," said the colonel at his New York office in the Trinity Building. "They marry for a home to live out of; they marry a man to be away from him; they marry, in fact, only to get divorced so they may choose a new husband or live on the alimony paid them by the first.

"Children are the last thing they want, if they can have beautiful clothes and look fashionable; if they can ride in automobiles or motor boats, have a villa at Bar Harbor and a cottage at Newport, they are smug in their domestic accomplishments. None of them knows how to cook or sew, and, besides, they seem to deny that their good old homely grandmothers knew how to wash clothes.

"New York women are fashionable, and the pity is that women from other States follow them like sheep. Why, let a good woman from Texas, come here, and in a few months she'll be a fine veneer of the New York woman. If a fashionable New York woman went up Fifth Avenue with a ring in her nose the jewellers couldn't furnish nose rings fast enough to supply the demand. The bobbed hair craze died down in the Mississippi border six weeks after the first one arrived in New York."

"Then it is certain, Colonel Green that you'll not pick out a New York fashion plate for a wife?"

"I'm not looking for a wife at all. I am old-fashioned enough to believe that if a man makes up his mind to get the right woman will cross his path some day."

CHANGING HER FACE

(From the Household Friend)

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can remove it and have a new one. The thin veil of stiffly half-dead cuticle is an encumbrance and should be removed to free the fresh, vigorous young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

There's a simple old-fashioned home remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercolite wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The mercolite will gently absorb all the lifeless skin and leave a healthy and beautiful complexion, as fresh as a child's. Usually it takes with it all such facial blemishes as freckles, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples, etc. It is pleasant to use, effective and economical. The face so treated immediately looks years younger.

HELD IN $5,000 FOR STREET FIGHT INQUIRY

Hugh A. McDonnell, twenty-two, of No. 12 Hyde avenue, Newton, charged with assaulting Edward L. Driscoll, of No. 21 Winship street, Brighton, on the night of August 3, appeared in Brighton Court to-day, pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 for a hearing on August 15. The men engaged in a street fight.

POST SEASON SERIES BETWEEN RUSTLERS AND RED SOX LIKELY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SOX OUT TO GET EVEN WITH NAPS IN SECOND

By R. W. LARDNER.

In an effort to even up with the Naps, Manager Pat Donovan of the Red Sox will probably ask Ray Collins to do the pitching in the second game of the series this afternoon.

It is no easy task to foil sluggers like Joe Jackson and Larry Lajoie, but the Red Sox feel that Collins can stop them if anybody can.

If Steve Yerkes' finger is still bothering him, Billy Purtell will go to at shortstop again. Bill Carrigan will probably do the catching.

The Naps are now going at a fast clip. Gregg was none too strong yesterday, but Lajoie's slugging was enough to encourage any club to go to it and win.

Stovall will probably work Kaler or Blanding, the University of Michigan product, to-day.

It is much too early to count the Red Sox out of the race for the American League pennant. They are only about a dozen games from first place, and teams have been known to be worse off than that at this stage of the season, only to come through the stretch with a rush and land in front.

The Sox, with their new infield, with Harry Hooper running wild and the pitchers going along nicely, ought to win about two-thirds of their remaining games. But it depends on their accomplishments during this next Western trip. They haven't gone at a pennant clip in the West previously this year, and, since they have a great deal better than on their other two journeys if they want to be considered contenders. Furthermore, there's no chance for them, unless the Athletics and Tigers suffer a big slump.

The prospect for a championship team here this season isn't particularly bright. However, there is a great deal of interest, and will continue to hope as long as there is any excuse.

Want Post-Season Series.

Whether Boston finishes first, second, third or fourth, the populace will want a post-season series to look at. If it isn't the world's series, it might be something almost as good.

The New York Giants are still counted in the running for the National League flag. Pittsburg and Chicago should probably be favorites. Anyhow, the Giants, failing to win championship of their own, will probably engage in another post-season set with Hal Chase's Yankees, or some series proved a drawing card last Fall and New Yorkers are hungry for more of the same.

So the Red Sox won't have the Giants as opponents, unless it be in the world's series. There's no objection to a set with Charley Dooin's Phillies, which might be interesting. If the Athletics repeat their triumph Philadelphia will be too busy to think about anything but the Mackies.

And if the latter are beaten out, they will have their own home brush with the Phillies.

A set-to with Brooklyn wouldn't have much attraction, and most of the other National League clubs are too far away. At the rate they are going now, the Pirates will come dangerously close to copping first honors. But if they don't, why wouldn't a series between them and the Sox be the thing?

Talk in 1903 that two teams battled for the world's championship and nobody in Boston, not in Pittsburg, either, forgotten the result. The rivalry established then would be renewed to a hurry and the Huntington Avenue park and Forbes Field would have enough business to pay the athletes and Messrs. Dreyfus and Taylor a fat sum. Neither here nor Pittsburg cares to think about such a series at present, and won't have time to think of it until the big question is settled.

The Pirates, with a little bit of luck, will finish one-two-three in the National, and the Red Sox, should they play .500 ball steadily, will get in for the show money at least. Well, if neither of the clubs is fortunate enough to capture first prize, let's get them together and have something to make us forget what might have been.

Red Sox vs. Rustlers.

While the Rustlers appear to be doomed to finish last, a bout between them and their Huntington avenue brothers wouldn't be a flat failure financially. The duel between the Browns and Cardinals at St. Louis this Spring drew 30,000 people, despite the fact that the inhabitants of Missouri had it all figured out for the Browns to draw the booby prize in their own circuit.

Boston is certainly as good a ball town as St. Louis. Yes, and then some. At the first mention of a civil war here, the bugs might throw up their hands and say the Red Sox would murder Tenney's bunch. But this murdering business is a different thing again, Mawruss. Remember, the Browns of St. Louis have won as many games this year from the Red Sox as the Red Sox have won from them. You never can tell in the national pastime.

Meanwhile the Red Sox are leaving us to-morrow night. There are two more chances to see them here, but they're not on another one of those rough journeys.

SURE HOWARD DID LAY DOWN

Paul Howard, the best outfielder, who was with the St. Paul club of the American Association the early part of the season and is now binging the ball right and left with the Brockton Club of the New England League, is being charged out in St. Paul with having laid down while there in his batting, the object being that he might be released and so get back East again. One of the St. Paul papers says of the pair:

"The news of Howard's success in the East does not come as any great surprise to the members of the St. Paul Club. The curly headed player was 'laying down' on the St. Paul and Seattle clubs just as surely as anything in the world, and all he needed to do was not want to play far away from home.

"His work with the Brockton Club shows plainly that he has the goods if he desires to deliver, but as a member of the St. Paul club he acted and played like a genuine look leaguer.

"Manager McKee was wise to Howard's game at the opening of the season, but as players were scarce at that time, McKee could do nothing but keep him on the club.

ALDERMAN MADE UMPIRE.

LAWRENCE, Aug. 8.—Alderman Thomas M. Jordan of this city has been appointed an umpire in the New England League.

ATTELL IN FOR A HARD FIGHT

By KNOCKOUT.

Many followers of the boxing game believe that Abe Attell has taken too much in hand for his great "comeback" in the four cornered ring. Abe had been out of the ring for several months with a bum shoulder and arm, but he is so confident in himself that he has signed up with K. O. Brown for a ten-round bout early in September.

Abe has had a great number of backers in every bout he has had in New York for the past few years, but many have stated that they will think over this bout twice and some of them the third time.

Fully as much interest is being manifested in the bout as if it were for a real title. Abe has been one of the cleverest boxers in the ring and he knows what he can do so, gentle fans, wait until the bout is over before you knock.

Gallant Mitt Slingers.

The reputations of the two gallant mitt slingers is too well known and nothing need to be said in that line. The fight resolves itself into a case of a crafty ring general against one of the most awkward and hard hitting lightweights. Tuesday night that Abe is passing over to the little Dutchman need not worry the fans a whole lot, for Abe is used to fighting the big fellows all his time, and he thinks nothing of the handicap.

Ossifer, she is again. Received a newspaper from way out in Medford, Oregon, yesterday, and it was from our old outdoor chum, Mr. Jeffrey M. Thompson. But had a little bout in that town last Friday night, one of those bouts that will grudgingly bring him up to the title once again, and the way it looked Hat must owe part of the purse. About half the paper is given up to the great champion and things he has done. One notable thing, with a good headline let us know that Nelson and ladies' day at his training camp several times. That is something new.

But won the bout against Tommy Gaffney, a hard little lightweight of Spokane, in five rounds, after a violent fight.

Fake Fighters Barred.

The boxing commissioners out on the Pacific Coast have taken the right steps towards the uplift of the boxing game by barring several fighters who have put up fake fights within their limits. If several other cities do that, the boxing fans will almost be assured of seeing a good battle when they put down to hard iron men.

New York has not barred any fakers as yet, but its fine boxing law that was just passed will put a damper on the fake fighters and their managers who like nothing better than to swindle the fans out of good money. The law gives the boxing commission the right to close up the clubs which put up fake exhibitions and not many clubs that are making money will take any chances.

August 15 is the day upon which "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien will try and "come back." "Honest Jack" is down on the card to meet Mr. Samuel Langford of the fair village of Cambridge at the Twentieth Century Club in New York.

O'Brien has been getting very much about desiring to get a bout with the Boston "Tar Baby" that Joe Woodman and Woodman at once began to get the wires hot between here and the city of Brotherly Love. The result is the present bout.

In his day O'Brien was a good fighter, but the line of gold turned him to leave the straight and narrow path. In his first scrap with the late Stanley Ketchel a few years ago, Jack put up one of the greatest battles of his career, though he was knocked to the floor unconscious during the last few seconds of the fight.

The knockout did not count as the final round had come to an end before the count of ten had been tolled off by the referee, shortly afterward Ketchell fought O'Brien in Philadelphia. This time the "Assassin" won in a few rounds.

And on the fifteenth Langford will try to put O'Brien out of commission in even shorter time. Both men are reported as being in the best of condition.

NEW YORK FANS FAVOR PACKEY

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Pretty soon we'll all be figuring on this Wolgast-McFarland thing. They are to be ten rounds in Milwaukee next month, but already quite a few wagers at evens are marked up, and it's even money, right now. The McFarland boosters here in New York can't figure where Ad comes in on a ten-round affair. Packey has had things so easy around here in ten-round spurters that we can't imagine any one trimming him over the same distance. Make it twenty or twenty-five rounds and Ad Wolgast would be a favorite, but in the standing long fight Packey, according to New York fans, will surely rule favorite.

Jones Sure of Win.

Tom Jones, who looks after Wolgast's interests, is just as certain of a win in this go as he ever was. In an interview the other day Tom is quoted as saying:

"Honest, I feel sorry for McFarland. I think the boy has nice folks and a lot of friends, and for this reason I really hate to contemplate what my Ad will do to that Chicago Gorgonzola. Did you ever see one of those big house-cleaning machines work? Well, that's the way Wolgast will clean McFarland.

"The weight? Say, Wolgast could lick McFarland if he had eighteen arms and weighed a ton, and I'll make any kind of difference if the distance was one or a hundred rounds. That Wolgast is a boy, glide boy, and I don't know any boxer in the world anywhere near his weight that has a chance to beat him. He'll beat McFarland like a good horse with the heats an egg."

Just then Jones contemplated his watch and made a beeline for the train.

Coffroth After Carl Morris.

"Skoog!" was Jones's parting shot. "Wolgast is a cinch over McFarland. "Wolgast" but the rest of the pearly speech that Jones intended to make about the champion was lost in space as Tom's form disappeared through the crowd.

If more of these "White Hopes" and near-champs come to New York and showed what they can do, as Tony Ross has done, there'd get off more of the green stuff. Tony came here and made good. Now he's matched up right along, and he is a hit with the fans. His fight against Jeannette the other night showed him to be some tough guy.

WEALTH IN FAIR AT MARSHFIELD

Marshfield Fair isn't the richest county fair any more. Joshua and Sarah Ann, who used to be the whole thing, are now nothing more than specimens. And they don't go any more to see the prize hog and inanimous pumpkins, the cut quilt of three thousand pieces, all feathers sewed, that Cousin Susan got the first premium for, and the jelly that Amy Hunt beat all the township on.

What Joshua and Sarah Ann are taking in the county fair for nowadays is to see Thomas W. Lawson and the other millionaires in captivity and the ordinary crowd. There are pretty nearly as many of the rich as plain people at the Marshfield Fair these days, that is, it appears that way because the men and women of wealth now draw the greatest attention.

The fair has changed from being an agricultural affair to a society event, owing to the interest taking in it by the summer colony around the Marshfield Hills. It has a horse show tacked on. It may not be understood however that what the horse headed Barnstable colony citizens go for is the county fair for specific and at the time the bidding at the auction sales and those that have the centre of the stage become there is the horse racing, and a fine time is had by thoroughly pleasing to his ears. The fact this year that Lawson, Tad Jones and already the ballies and sensitive Summer people are busily preparing for it.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

THE BALM OF BASEBALL

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Is the world sort o' gray as you plod on your way?
Are collections so poor that the wolf howls your door?
Go to the game and forget it.
Do they place you for low when you think you are high?
Does your wife need a dress that you're scheming to buy?
Is the outlook all fog? Never mind, friend. Don't cry—
Go to the game and forget it.
Has the market gone wrong while you're trading along?
Go to the game and forget it.
Has your purse grown as flat that you'd sell an old hat?
Go to the game and forget it.
Has your ship not come in while you're watching the pier?
Is your hair turning gray while you're holding the fort?
Don't be a crabbed old cove. Be a sport
Go to the game and forget it.

POLICE STOP RIOT AT MEMPHIS BOUT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Police were required to restore order following the referee's award of the fight to Jack Johnson of Boston over Christy Williams of New York in the fourteenth round.

The end came in the seventh round, when Johnson knocked out Williams. Johnson was taking the count. Spectators gathered that Johnson had fouled Williams after smashing him down, but the referee decided was unfounded. Johnson had the better of a majority of the rounds.

K. O. BROWN BEATS FERGUSON

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8.—Before the Monumental Athletic Club of Baltimore, K. O. Brown, the sensational little fighter from Boston, won a decision over Ferguson at the end of the tenth fast round bout here tonight. Brown was given the best of Ferguson at Philadelphia a few months ago, and the Baltimorean's had his hands full with Brown tonight as regards speed and opportunity. He was repeatedly warned by White for his tactics.

The crowd filled Broadway Auditorium to overflowing and showed a lively interest in sports that we were pulling with fists as in boxing. Ferguson was the favorite and showed a big following in the betting. Brown was the aggressor throughout the bout, but Ferguson's cleverness in defense made a great fight.

Ferguson is the fighting sailor who was knocked out by Jack Johnson in Philadelphia. He was formerly in the navy, but was discharged on the strength of that affair. He is a native of Baltimore, who was favored by the crowd.

The Vanity Box

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By ALICE STUYVESANT

"NOT by going as no witness for no trial. My duty is here. Besides her Ladyship was too fond of wearing rich jewelry. She had the name of being charitable, but she'd have done more wisely to sell her precious stones and give the money to missions. Maybe her murder by some thief was a judgment from heaven on her vanity.

"We all of us have faults, but vanity is a crying sin. And Lady Hereward put powder on her face, and pink paint on her lips. 'Tisn't many would have seen that, perhaps, but my eyes are sharp for such things, though I'm not as young as I was, and I can't abide 'em, on Christian or no Christian.

"That's all I know about her ladyship, though I was servant to the steward of her husband's estate, so it's no good summoning me. You've got all I can tell out of me now."

"It isn't so much Lady Hereward I'm here to ask you about," said Gaylor, "as Mr. Ian Barr."

"Oh, indeed, do they think he killed her? Well, I'm not surprised. I always thought his temper would be his undoing one of these days."

"There's certainly ground for suspicion," replied the detective. "Mr. Barr has disappeared, and so far can't be found."

"Who's trying to find him?" inquired Mr. Barr's late housekeeper. "Those folks that advertised for me, Kipper & Beeching, or whatever their name is?"

A Detective

"Scotland Yard is trying to find him, and will before long," said Gaylor, thinking to awe the woman; but her face did not change, unless to grow more grim.

"By that do you mean the police?"

He bowed, looking about eighteen.

Her thin lips curled. "And are you a policeman?"

"I am a member of the criminal investigating department."

"Why didn't they let you finish going to school?"

"I am nearly thirty," the detective informed her, laughing.

"Hm! I suppose the Kipper & Beeching men were dummies of the police, then?" She was sharp enough, in her way.

"We employ the firm occasionally. But it is in the name of Scotland Yard that I come to question you."

"How am I to know that? You might be anybody, in that gray suit and them brown boots of yours. And anyhow, I consider you got hold of my address on false pretences. You made me think I might be coming in for a legacy. I don't see why I should answer your questions."

Gaylor took from his pocket an important-looking wallet, and produced his credentials.

Miss Maunsell was convinced, though not impressed.

"Well, all I can say is," she remarked, "that Scotland Yard must be hard put to it to find grown-up men. And I don't approve of their methods."

"If you're summoned as a witness a fortnight from now, you will have to go, you know," Gaylor assured her, slyly. "The police have power to subpoena you, and force you to obey if you refuse."

"You can drive a horse to water, but you can't make him drink," said Miss Maunsell, with a kind of dreary nonchalance.

"You wouldn't like to go to prison—a respectable Christian woman like you?"

"A good many respectable Christians have been in prison." And the housekeeper cited several famous scriptural examples.

If She Thought Right

"That's true. But if you were there it would lose you your present place, nor would it help you to get another. And I'm here to save you trouble. That's where your 'advantage' comes in. If you answer freely and truthfully all my questions, the evidence part of a conversation from being called. Besides, your conscience can't counsel you to obstruct justice. You believe in the Old Testament, I'm sure: 'An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth.'"

"I'll hear your questions, and if I think right, I'll answer them," replied the woman, after a moment's reflection. "If I don't think right, I'll go to prison for twenty years rather than speak. So there you have my mind."

Gaylor believed that not only did she mean what she said, but would stick to it "through thick and thin," and perhaps find a fearful joy in martyrdom. He therefore chose his words with care, suiting them tactfully, as he hoped, to the nature with which he had to deal. He began simply, by asking if Miss Maunsell had had any acquaintances with Mr. Barr before entering his service. Was she by way of being a friend of his family?

"Not I, indeed," she answered scornfully, to the detective's satisfaction. "I didn't know anything about him, until, against my will, I overheard part of a conversation between Mr. Barr and Lady Hereward, the day he gave up his Wigwardship. When I want to get a place I advertise. No agencies for me!

"Mr. Barr answered my advertisement. I thought the work would suit me; as it did, as far as that goes, though I can't say I entirely approved of him. In fact, I didn't, although he was always what he should be to me, or I wouldn't have stopped an hour. My initials only were signed to the advertisement, and the same way when I advertised again after leaving him, and got the place here with Mr. James.

Never Had Words

"I stay near Barnes when I'm out of a situation with an old, blind aunt of mine, who's glad enough to have my help when she can get it, instead of the charity girl off the parish she has when I'm in a job. That's why all your police couldn't have found me if I hadn't been silly enough to be caught by a newspaper trap wrapped round a fish."

Judging from Miss Maunsell's expression when she delivered this statement, she would never taste fish again.

To Be Continued To-morrow

"The Vanity Box" is running serially in the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. A liberal instalment of this remarkable mystery novel will be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN

Standing of the clubs in ordinary series:

	P.	W.	L.	P.C.
Starfish Giants	10	8	2	.800
Umperliners	10	5	5	.500
Wasps	13	5	8	.385
Wild Cats	9	3	6	.333

"Shrimp" Flynn's Wild Cats suffered a decisive defeat yesterday at the hands of "Eaglebeak" Spruder, the marvelous young chucker of the Wasps, of which aggregation "Puggy" Mullane is the pilot.

The score was 21 to 8.

The game was one that ought to go down in history, unless a better one is played to-morrow. The largest attendance of fans that has yet been seen at the league grounds was on hand one full half hour before the game started, and those easy-going young followers of the great national pastime, who are accustomed to strolling in a few minutes after the rising of the curtain got badly left.

The game was called at 3:30 sharp, and at that time there was not a vacant seat either in the grandstand or the bleachers. The management must have cleaned up a fortune in bottles and sacks.

The reason for the large crowd at yesterday's séance was that two of the biggest stars of the league faced each other—"Eaglebeak" Spruder of the Wasps and "Whizzlewhaz" of the Wild Cats. We must say that both of them played up to their reputations—"Eaglebeak" by his wonderful pitching and "Whizzlewhaz" by his marvellous swatting.

We dare not state the exact number of strikeouts that "Eaglebeak" shoved down the throats of the Wild Cats for four of being accused of gross exaggeration. We are also rather afraid of getting in wrong as truth experts when we state the fact that "Whizzlewhaz" was struck out in the fourth inning by "Eaglebeak." "Whizzlewhaz" claims that it is the first time in his life that this ever happened, and we believe it; but perhaps he has never run across a twister like "Eaglebeak."

"Whizzlewhaz" wants to bet a dime that he does not strike out in to-morrow's game. No one took him up as far as we know.

The "George Washington" kidnapping case is still puzzling Detective Rattles, who is working on it. He ought to get some kind of a clue for us to enlarge upon for to-morrow's paper. We hope he does, as we like to be kept busy.

The Corset—In Cleopatra's Day

By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association.

(Reproduced by Permission, from the August Number of "Good Housekeeping" Magazine.)

THIS is another of Miss Brinkley's pictures reproduced from the August number of "Good Housekeeping" Magazine. It shows a scene in Cleopatra's court. The Queen is depicted indulging in one of her favorite experiments, which was that of giving a slave a cup of poison and commanding him to drink while she watched him writhe in agony until the poison mercifully ended his sufferings.

Cleopatra was one of the most beautiful women the world has even seen. As the picture shows, she never wore a corset, but girded her waist with a wide band, fastened in front with a jewelled buckle. In this she showed sense far above her sisters of modern times, for it gave her a natural seductiveness of form that the women of to-day can produce only by artificial means. Cleopatra had many cruel and savage traits, but she knew how to preserve her health and beauty.

It was in those days that the womanly figure came nearer to being ideal than at any other time within the memory of man. It has been the ambition of women ever since to endeavor, by artificial means, to give her form artistic lines. The result has been the corset.

Cleopatra, it is true, was gifted by nature with a beautiful figure, so that she needed but little to make herself as attractive as a woman of those times could be. The broad-banded girdle closely models the hips and loins and throws out the chest. This girdle is still in use to-day in Spain, but the Spanish dancers who wear them also, in most cases, wear a corset, too.

This girdle was also adopted by the women of ancient Greece and Rome and was called a fasciae. In some cases they were most elaborate affairs, and from the jewelled buckle that formed the fastening hung chains of gold or ropes of pearls. The girdles were invariably made of the finest silk, brightly colored.

These girdles, in contrast to the modern corset, were helpful instead of harmful, as they supported the body instead of squeezing or cramping it.

Never were they drawn so tightly as to interfere with the blood circulation, which is the chief fault of the corset, but were draped ornamentally and allowed to fit to the form naturally.

There were several other styles of girdles or waist supporters in Cleopatra's time, a great many of the Roman women wearing robes fastened by narrow bands or straps. These, while more sensible than the corset, did not allow the ease afforded by the Egyptian girdle.

A combination of the girdle and the Roman robe is seen in Japan, where the corset has only recently been introduced. It is safe to say that the girdle proved later to be the basis for the corset, although now all trace of the former has disappeared in this country.

An intensely interesting article in the August number of "Good Housekeeping" Magazine, from which this picture, by permission, has been reproduced, explains fully the various stages of the corset, with many other illustrations by Nell Brinkley.

The Meanness of Envy

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1911, National News Association.

WHEN you look out on the solar system and think of the immensity of this great universe does it ever occur to you how utterly small and contemptible are many of our aims, ambitions and efforts?

And what a pitiable waste of time, thought and strength we put into miserable worries and mean troubles!

The stars in the heavens are countless; there are solar systems back of solar systems; and trillions of billions of constellations exist which the strongest telescope has not been able to discern. Each has its place and purpose.

Just so our earth is dotted thick with human beings; and each has his part in the eternal scheme, and just as good right to air to breathe, earth to stand on, and food to nourish him as another.

The moment we begin to begrudge any human being the privilege to enjoy the benefits of life, or the right to make an effort to earn success, just so are we ridiculous as one of the stars would be if it used up its scintillating power in envy and selfish jealousy of another star—only we add sinfulness to the folly, because we have thinking minds and know better.

Mean Striving of the Envious

A well-to-do man, with more business than he could attend to, has been known to lie awake nights trying to devise means to prevent another poor young man from starting a similar business; albeit there was work enough and to spare for both; and the public would be benefited by having the extra accommodation.

A music teacher, worn and overworked and obliged to turn away pupils, has made bitter, heart-rending complaint another teacher who attempted to earn an honest livelihood by opening an avenue of independence for himself.

A poor man in art work with an assured position has felt himself insulted by the advent of another man into the same field of endeavor, and he has found delight in ridiculing the newcomer's work.

A poet (now dead) whose verses had received high praises, and who was not dependent upon his pen for support, turned green with jealousy and black with rage over the vogue of Keating when he first came into popularity, and wasted precious vitality in talking and writing derogatory criticisms of the new star.

A physician, unable to answer the calls made upon him, and almost upon the point of retiring with a comfortable fortune, yet turned a violent face of disapproval upon the young doctor who opened an office a few blocks away.

Do not these mean and contemptible phases of human nature seem an insult to the God who created man in His own image, and who sent us here to work out and develop the Divine nature to the utmost?

What a wicked waste of vitality, of thought, electricity, of creative power, which, if conserved, would mean achievements undreamed of!

Drive Out Unholy Thoughts

If you harbor in your heart one single thought which does not allow you to wish spontaneous "Godspeed" to any one and every one who is trying to carve out a career or to make a living in your own line of endeavor, or in any line of any one near and dear to you, then go alone to your room and shut the door, and say in calm sanity and uncharitable impulse, "Get thee behind me, Satan; I will have none of you."

Then look up to the great heavens and call on the Invisible Helper to aid you in uprooting this petty, selfish and envious weed from your heart. And never rest until you can, with all your heart and soul, say: "Success, prosperity and happiness to my fellow-worker in the garden of the world."

Reason with yourself that there is no more possibility of your being crowded from the place you are fitted to fill than for one star to be crowded from its orbit by another.

God gave to each little world its own sphere; and He gave to each soul its sphere as well.

No one and nothing can crowd you or interfere with you but YOUR OWN FAILURE TO DO YOUR BEST.

No one can give the same individuality to your effort—that belongs to you—and if you feel you possess no individuality then CONSERVE ALL YOUR FORCES TO DEVELOP IT.

Every time yu let a mean and petty thought go out into channels of envy, jealousy, caustic criticism or ridicule of another, you are just so much farther from developing originality in your work.

It is as if you were trying to get a clear stream of water from a mountain and deliberately blocked up the bed of the stream with refuse.

Do Not Defile the Stream

Clear out the river bed; let nothing fall into it from your mind but love for the Creator of the inexhaustible Fountain and for your thirsting fellow creatures.

Then will the waters of inspiration flow into your soul, and you will have enough, and to spare, for all who come to you, and just in the measure that you rejoice with others whose glasses and pitchers are filled will your own vessels be supplied forever and forever.

For unto thise who HAVE THE LOVE OF GOD AND HUMANITY IN THEIR HEARTS shall more be given and all other things added thereunto.

THE VILLAIN.

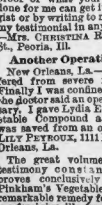
SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from my druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 108 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PETROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

TRY THIS SHAMPOO FOR BRITTLE, STRINGY HAIR

"People with brittle, stringy lifeless hair," says Mrs. Mae Martyn, in the Denver Call, "should never use soaps for shampooing, because of the free alkali which robs hair sacs of their natural oil, causing a dry, scaly condition of the scalp and brittle, falling hair.

"The most pleasing thing to use is plain canthrox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in a cup of hot water, is enough for a good shampoo. When this is rubbed on the scalp, a rich, cleansing lather is created, so soothing and cooling to tender, itchy scalps. Rinsing leaves the scalp healthy and pliant and gives to the hair a softness and brilliancy really charming. With a canthrox shampoo there is little labor and then, too, the hair dries quickly without streaking."

Bang! Bang! The hunter fires at the giraffe, not knowing that it is bearing a precious freight of human lives. A giraffe is a harmless, if grotesque, animal, and it seems a pity to shoot one, but then many things are done in the name of sport that persons would otherwise recoil from.

The startled giraffe makes straight for the edge of the cliff, under which Claude, Rosamond and the villain Desmond are dangling from the rope tied to the animal's neck. Desmond is bound and helpless, while Claude, clinging to the rope, supports his sweetheart. It is a dangerous position.

Over the precipice goes the frightened giraffe! There seems no hope now for any of the three persons swinging on the rope, as all are falling with frightful speed to the bottom of the ravine. Probably you have dreamed at some time that you were falling from a height. If so, you know the awful sensation.

But steady! Our hero's nerves are not shaken by a disaster that might well cause the stoutest heart to quail. He has climbed up the rope with Rosamond and clutched the powerful neck of the giraffe, leaving Desmond to dangle below. It is a slim chance, but a falling man will grasp at swallows, as the proverb says.

The slim chance is turning out better. The lovers are upon the curved neck of the giraffe, which is bent like a bow. Claude has brought his powerful intellect to bear on the problem, and has decided that the brute will try to shake them off, and with its great strength may send him flying through the air to a safe place.

Sure enough the giraffe does as Claude expected and the lovers are thrown safely across the ravine. "I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, as he and the giraffe continue their downward course. Death appears inevitable for the villain. To-morrow we shall show his fate. In the meantime, kindly observe—

"OVER NIGHT" MAKES BIG HIT AT OPENING OF THE SHUBERT SEASON

"Because me" said Mr. Gibbs, as he passed out into Tremont street and took a whiff of last night's fog, "believe me, that show is the goods. It goes right at the people's hearts. Just like my friend, Governor Foss."

Mr. Gibbs's is Benjamin F. Gibbs, the well-known expert on politics, politicians and things in general. He was up to the Shubert Theatre last night. He said so, and hundred others passed that gilt portal to see "Over Night" make its appearance for the "first time outside of New York city where it ran nine months' one performance!

Mr. Gibbs sees his present position in life as middle ground between the people thereof. Therefore his views on "Over Night" are the opinion of both audience and actor on the situation and the opinion of the actor on the audience after it has seen the show.

"The play and Mr. Gibbs' opinion are every type of individual. How do I know? Well, I watched the different types in the audience while the play was going on. Also while the former became shaky with fear to the left of me in the orchestra. Never saw them jump quicker in all my life.

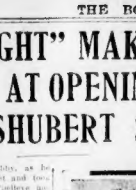
"Then there were Jack Field, the Mayor's secretary, and Johnnie Killeen, the city's "real estate agent, and a few others I can see. They had grins on them that were a delight to behold. Also, when the show got over, they were sitting way down in left front. So expected it was much use to. It were for all the times I've been there. There was H. W. Lardner, the AMERICAN'S baseball expert, sitting right behind me. See? I thought he'd slide out of his chair a laughing.

"Take it from me that little Margaret Lawrence, who plays the part of the bride who's left on the boat with the other women's husbands, is the cutest and most natural bride I ever saw on the stage. Then that Thomas Wise, who is on the boat with brides by the wholesale, is another fellow who they make a great hero. That chap Walter Greene, who plays the role of Al Rivers knows his stuff all right. He'll make a peach of a Johnnie.

"That hotel clerk, who's real name is Arthur P. Aylsworth, makes what was evidently intended to be a small role one of the most interesting in the whole play. Corse actor. They were all great, each one of them.

"The plot is awfully good too. The lines are bright, and the situations as one might wish one, are the work of a genius. Good show, all around. After all, I'm not my choosing how the fellow recites when he's signing the hotel register. I'm going to send my two daughters to see it."

All of which is Mr. Gibbs's opinion. And Mr. Gibbs's opinion is worth while.



HAZEL BURGESS LAWRENCE

Miss Lawrence, one of the hits in "Over Night" cast.

Majestic.

A delightful production of William Gillette's famous one-act "Clarice" is given at the Majestic Theatre this week by the Lindsay Morrison stock company. Miss Florence Gordon as Clarice and Wilson Melrose as the distressed Dr. Carrington are no strangers to their respective parts, both having played them a few years ago when the Stranger stock company was at the Boston Theatre.

Mr. Melrose and Miss Gordon bring forth remarkably well the emotional qualities existing between the doctor and the lady in his care. They are often seen together thinking out parts for the play in the parlor, when the doctor is writing, and in so doing learn that each is in love with the other, but great discomfort is shown when Mrs. Treat, an aunt, interferes in an unsuccessful attempt to break up the sentiment each other.

Miss Dorothy Dalton's amazing was played by Miss Rose Morrison, which part she showed her great skill as a character actress and as an admirable contender of comedy roles.

"Wildfire," Lillian Russell's famous success piece, will be the attraction at the Majestic for the first time in stock in this city, showing that Mr. Morrison is ever mindful to his patrons the best plays at popular prices. Mr. Morrison and company feel sure that he will prolong his season into September with a announcement next week for approval of all.

Keith's.

In connection with Admiral Togo's visit to this country, it is interesting to note that the Orient also figures prominently in a most delightful and varied program at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. Kajiyama, a Japanese wrestling, performs feats of "collapsity" which hold his audience spellbound for nearly half an hour, while he controls both hand and brain to the purpose of his will. Among other things he writes with both hands simultaneously, which is even more interesting when he pores at first when we learn that he writes entirely different words.

Another wonder from the far East is the aerial express act of the Gilberts, who, by demonstrating speeds of the motorist and originality of aircraft by means of electric waves, open up a most fascinating field for the possibilities in the near future. Last night Mr. Roberts acted the conductor express and sank at will, and returned to the stage, having demonstrated the efficiency of wireless control.

A great little sketch was put on by the three Mattison sisters, entitled "A Trip Around," which, though a trifle overdone in aggravate singing of the performers and inferior setting, won an unqualified success. Another clever act was that of Bimbo and Baby Helen Weiss, Bimbo and Baby Helen Weiss, Bimbo and Baby Helen Weiss,

There Is Plenty of "True Friendship" Left in the World

Some Men, However, Mistake for Friendship Good-Natured Kindness or Generosity—Which Has Nothing to Do with Friendship

Copyright, 1911, by American Journal-Examiner

Mr. Ringold thinks that friendship is dying out as an institution, or fears that it is. Here is his letter:

Editor AMERICAN:

Would like to know your opinion upon the following: Is there any such thing to-day as TRUE friendship existing between mankind? If so, what is your opinion of TRUE friendship?

Is it not a fact that we covet friendship to further our own selfish aims, such as commercial, political, social or otherwise?

Trusting to hear from you or your readers upon this subject,

MAURICE RINGOLD.

Mr. Ringold need not worry about the extinction of friendship. It has not gone to join the dodo, the roc or the dinosaur in the depths of oblivion.

Men are a little busier nowadays than they used to be, and they work, live and die rather rapidly. And they haven't perhaps quite as much time as they used to have for some of the outward signs of friendship—the writing of long letters and so on.

But friendship still exists everywhere, from the cradle, where you can see one baby very fond of another one, all the way up to extreme old age, in which friendship is more beautiful than at any other time of life.

Real friendship is unselfish. It is based on sincere admiration. Every man lacks some quality, most of us lack several hundred qualities. We admire in another the qualities that we lack.

Friendship as it exists to-day is as noble and as true as the famous friendship between Damon and Pythias, or between the two young gentlemen in the "Merchant of Venice," or between Socrates and the friends with whom he solemnly discoursed while they watched him die.

There are still fine friendships between men and fine friendships between women.

For instance, Rosa Bonheur and a certain young American woman lived together in Paris, poor—VERY POOR. In order to keep alive and get food to eat they spent the days painting flashy pictures on wooden boxes in which prunes were packed.

Rosa Bonheur, then a very young girl, showed remarkable talent. When she had a chance she took lessons in drawing and worked at things more important than the pictures on the prune boxes. The other girl said to her: "I can work harder and so earn enough with the prune boxes for both of us. You can be an artist. Go ahead and do it."

So Rosa Bonheur worked at her real art, while the other girl, giving up all hope of a real career, painted prune boxes enough for two.

Rosa Bonheur became a great artist—and she didn't forget her friend, the other girl. She shared her money with her and left her money to her when she died. That is a good kind of friendship.

Life would be a miserable thing if friendship, the one thing that makes it worth while, were suddenly wiped out.

The trouble is that many people nowadays take rather a sordid view of friendship. Friendship is supposed to be willingness to lend money, or willingness to help another man make a fool of himself. Perhaps that kind of friendship is not as plentiful as it might be. If it is not, so much the better.

Now Let the President Move for Peace in Albania

The President of the United States has acquired a world-wide prestige as an instigator of peace. This prestige is official and representative, because the great Republic is built upon a natural justice that is wider than the bounds of any country, and because, through all its history, the United States has led the way in movements for international law and international order. It is also a personal credit, derived from the immense achievement of last week—an achievement that sets the personality of Mr. Taft in the forefront of the world as the world's chief genius of conciliation.

The AMERICAN respectfully suggests to the President that this unique and unparalleled influence should be used to bring peace to the oppressed and distracted people of Albania. It would seem easily possible, through representations to the government of Great Britain, for the President to set afoot such powers of international law and order in Europe as would compel the Turk to take his heel off the bleeding body of Albania and make atonement for the outrage of women, the slaughter of children, the burning of homes and the wasting of flocks and fields.

The AMERICAN yesterday made its plea for money to succor the houseless, ragged and starving refugees in the Balkan province. But money alone will not save an expatriated race. The Albanians are a people without a country. Their country must be restored to them.

There can be no peace on earth without the rudiments of justice. And those who have just celebrated two great peace pacts of mutual honor have now in the appeal of Albania a noble opportunity to prove the virility of their faith.

The Turks—by arson, rape and murder—have made a wilderness and called it Peace. It is the unescapable duty of mankind to revise that definition.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THANKS FOR AN EDITORIAL

Editor AMERICAN:

Accept my heartfelt thanks for your splendid editorial on the butcheries of Christians in Turkey. It should appeal to every Christian heart.

You have ever been on the side of humanity, and never undertake a task or fight without finishing that fight.

England alone could stop these atrocities which have been carried on for so long, but I believe she is slothful. Now call the attention of the whole world to the horrible state that exists, by your powerful papers. Not only an exercise and loudly voiced protest, but hundreds of thousands of your faithful readers will indorse every word of this editorial.

WILLIAM SULLIVAN.

PERSONAL LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS

Editor AMERICAN:

Why do you not advocate a national law making each and every director of a corporation liable for the acts of the corporation of which he is a director?

Would that not make all corporations good and do away with the scandals?

You have done much good in your stand for honesty. Try this matter.

A SUFFERER.

Mr. McIsaac's Letters on the Chamber of Commerce Tour

The following letter was received by the editor of the AMERICAN:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Is Mr. McIsaac a newspaper man and was he actually selected and paid by the Boston AMERICAN as their special representative to travel with the Chamber of Commerce party and write articles on the trip for the paper?

I think myself, and I have heard numbers of others say the same that his articles read like some schoolboy's. One would judge by the way they are written that this was his first trip abroad, as he seems to think all the councilmen and burgomasters are old rubes and the jolly Boston boys just fill them up with the full con, as he calls it.

He isn't fooling them half as much as he is himself and, as an experienced traveler in England and on the Continent, I can imagine what they think of his kind.

Why not have him write a history of Europe upon his return—he will be able to—in his own mind—and it certainly would be vivid enough.

Why, either one of the Mayor's daughters could write better letters than your special representative. He seems to feel real hurt when they don't make a fuss over the party. I am surprised that the King and the Kaiser didn't send them special invitations to dine.

Tell us please, as we have an argument over it, does he get real money for it?

Yours truly,

T. FRANK NIGHTINGALE.

No. 59 Falmouth street, Suite 4, Boston.

We are pleased to inform our interested correspondent that Mr. McIsaac is a newspaper man, that he is on the staff of this newspaper and that he is being paid for his work abroad.

We have followed Mr. McIsaac's letters pretty closely, and it is our opinion that they are pretty good reading. Many favorable comments have reached this office on the graphic and spirited reports that Mr. McIsaac has written of the trip of the Chamber of Commerce men. And, by the way, it is not Mr. McIsaac's first trip abroad, either.

It is a good idea to have one of the Mayor's daughters write about their trip abroad, and we'll see what can be done about it.—Editor Boston AMERICAN.

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

I HAVE granted the wish of the faithful;
I have turned them loose to slay;
And the farmhouse fires are funeral pyres—
Ho, Christian, kneel and pray!
Ye have told that your faith shall conquer;
Now prove me the spoken word;
Can the faith ye boast stop my bloody host?
Is your Providence deferred?

I have murdered and robbed and tortured,
As my brother ye called accursed.
To the Christian's tear I have called a jeer,
From his veins I have slaked my thirst.
For I am the sword of Allah;
My mission is burn and kill;
While ye beg and pray I go to slay—
While his sons endure I will!

So, Christian, back to your kennel;
Go pray for the blessed hour
When nations cease to prate of peace
And scheme for the balance of power.
For I am the sword of Allah,
And I follow my bloody way
As my brother did—as Mahomet bid—
Ho, Christian, kneel and pray!

Little Bobbie

He Writes About A Poetry Teacher

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

HUSBAND, sed Ma to Pa last nite, you have been asking me for a long time why I dident find a professor to give littel Bobbie sum lessons in piano playing. I have been chasing all over town to find a good professor to teech Bobbie, sed Ma, but during the hot months it is hard to find one. They are out at the sea shore, I guess.

Oh, well, there is a lot of time, sed Pa. Let's wait till it gits cool, along in the fall. The piano is paid for three months ahed, sed Pa. That will be time enuff. In the meantime, sed Pa, you mite let me have fifteen of that twenty-five that I gave you for the first payment for a piano teacher. You can have the other ten to buy a ribbon to put on one (1) side of a new summer hat—I mean jest a shopping hat, Pa sed.

Then Ma looked kind of confused & she sed Deerst, I have a confession to mak to you. Never mind confessing, sed Pa. If I end git two dollars opt of the twenty-five I can git along.

I havent got a cent left, Ma sed. I have paid the whole twenty-five dollars to a poetry teecher. To a what? sed Pa. To a poetry teecher, Ma sed. You know, deer hart, I have wanted to lern a lot of the inside of poetry writing for a long time, & Missus Blots, the wife of Gustav Blots, the grate German poet, has recommended this teecher to me. She tonld me that he cured her husband of writing German blank verse & taut him all them delitat French forms of verse, like Rondels & Tryto-lets etc. So I went to see him at his studio, sed Ma, & paid him the twenty-five for the first quarter year.

You doant tell me, sed Pa, I think it wud have been a grate deal better if you wud have gaiv him a quarter (25 cents) for the next twenty-five years, Pa said. What is the naim of this wunderful maiker of verse, sed Pa.

He is cumming here tonite, sed Ma, to talk over the terms with you. His naime is Fran-swah Villian, or something like that, sed Ma. You will fine him a vary charming poet. You see, sed Ma, that 25 dollars wich I gaiv him is only a deposit. I see, sed Pa, I suppose he will be here soon.

Jest then the door bell rang & Mister Villain caim in. Ah, yes, Mencoor, he sed to Pa, the lady, your wife, has told it to me that I shall tell her of the Rondel & the Tryto-let. The lady your wife is yet a genius, perhaps. I am first to recite to her a Tryto-let which these many years ago came from my poor pen:

Easy is a Try-tolet
If you reely mean to make it;
Onst a set refrain you get
Easy is a Try-tolet.
As you see, I pay my debt
With a other rime, Doocs take it,
Easy is a Try-tolet
If you reely learn to make it.

Isent that splendid? sed Ma to Pa. & Mister Villain rete it hisself.

No, sed Pa, he dident do anything of the kind. My old pal W. S. Henley rote that try-tolet, sed Pa. To show you I amisem poet myself, Pa sed, & to pave the way for a business transackshun yet to cum, lissen:

Easy is a Try-tolet
Any time you have to make it,
I can make you one, you can bet,
I can make a Try-tolet
If I have the nerve to fake it.

That soft coin you tried to get—
Grafter, let me see you take it!
Then Ma's poetry teacher gave Pa the 25 & ran out.

Why Not?

"PACK up your duds, my boy;
No more ploughin' to do;
You're goin' to work:
College is callin' you.
Readin' an' writin', pish:
Them ain't nothin' to me;
Muscle's the thing these days.
Sure you'll get a degree.

"Look at him, Ma! Well, say,
Sh, ain't I proud of you?
You'll put them teachers down—
You'll show 'em who is who.
Hunt up the high Mogul
And bit him one for me;
Gosh, he'll admire you, boy!
Sure you'll get a degree.

"Buy some new-fangled jeans.
Them as turns up, you know;
Puff on a cigarette,
Wear a starched shirt for show.
Can you march with the rest?
Can a coon climb a tree?
Wait till you hand 'em one—
Sure you'll get a degree.

"Four years of that, an', well,
You sign your name 'B. A.'
You get a fancy price
From graduation day.
Five times what fellers get
For Greek an' Algebra.
You'll make your parents proud.
Sure you'll get a degree."
